Designed by noted architect Stan Sackley, this home is regarded as one of his earlier works. Built in 1965, this is the very same year Stan was featured on the cover of "Palm Springs Life" and was involved in a short lived partnership called "Sackley and Light". When Sean Gaston and his partner Jim Jewell saw this home for the first time it was a jumble of additions, alterations and interesting design choices made over the years but they knew under all of this there was something significant. The answers lied rolled up in a pile of old wallpaper... the original blueprints lost for years. They now had the answers they were looking for and to their great delight discovered they had purchased a Sackley. Their goal now was to simply follow the original blueprints and put the home back as Stan had envisioned, thereby restoring the original aesthetic of the home...their work continues.

About Sean Gaston

Sean Gaston, the design half of the partnered firm Bee Renovated, Inc., has focused on the renovation, preservation and interior design of numerous homes throughout the San Francisco Bay area. After falling in love with Palm Springs on his first visit years ago, Sean's work and clientele have expanded to include the Coachella Valley and beyond. "It was like a breath of fresh air coming to Palm Springs for the first time.... the architecture, landscape and cultural mix have dramatically changed and inspired my aesthetic." Sean is known for his artful blend of vintage and modern furnishings with a handsomely chic and sophisticated, yet, comfortable sense of style.
